

Fred Brunner

June 18, 2018

It has been a long journey but Freddy fought hard and was courageous through it all. He found peace at last on June 18, 2018 in Toronto and he is now in a better place. Sadly missed by his beloved wife, Lay-Hoon and close friends. He had left an indelible mark on those who knew him and love him. He will be forever remembered for his wicked humor, generosity and kindness.

“ That is very sad to hear. As is usual in our busy lives when we think not enough of others, I wish I had spoken to Fred longer when he visited with me at the race paddock the last couple times. We will remember him for his matter of fact practical way of looking at the world. He would always leave you with a dose of reality but conveyed with humour. Lately he spoke about his ailments to me because they were similar somewhat to that which my mother had had. There are likely some wild stories that can be told of Fred's escapades in his early days of horse ownership where he definitely drove fast cars way over the speed limit rushing to be sure he didn't miss his horse race. We can't help Fred now, but our prayers are with you Lay-Hoon. Blair and Karin.

“ LayHoon,

We both send our deepest sympathy to you on Fred's passing.

Although we had some great times with you and Fred on the Africa cruise, our best memories come from our visit with you in Toronto when you took us to the races. We remember Fred's excitement and interest in all of the races, even if your horse was not in in it. That was something we will remember and cherish.

We send our love,

“ I first met Fred very briefly in 1987 when I visited Hoon in Toronto.

He subsequently came to Singapore by himself in late 1988 when I was pregnant with my son Sean. Hoon asked if I could take him to look at the Telok Blangah flat she had - we didn't get access to flat but looked around the neighborhood.

I spent a few hours with Fred - just the two of us. I remember being very comfortable with him - he was not chatty - just quietly friendly and nice.

Hoon once told me that both of them were sitting at their laptops side by side and she sent him a cruise brochure and in the next minute he had booked it and sent it back to her - I thought that was funny, without Hoon uttering a single word that she would like to go .

Rest in Peace Fred

“ So sorry to hear of Fred's passing. This man was very special to me and the two of us had many good talks when I worked for him at SQS. He was generous, and funny and an amazing person with a love for life, and Layhoon! I wish I had known he was sick, I would have loved to have seen him again. It is because of Fred that I am and have worked in this career for 25 years. I remember one day he told me " You don't know what you want to do, but let me tell you, this business is changing, and this is where you should be!"

Rest in peace my friend. Thank you for all you did for me. I have thought of you often, and will think of you still. Until we meet again.
