“ He was a great, complicated, problematic angelic being and a mentor for many, including myself. I had the pleasure (and tribulation!) of working with Alex for a number of years on Dimensions magazine, and he was never anything less than passionately involved in the ideas that we chose to explore. He taught me much and I will never forget his compassionate spirit.

“ Alexander was my dear friend and astrologer since 1986 when we met....he had a very difficult life due to his extremely unusual gift and talents. He felt too much.Because of his extreme sensitivity and complex personality I think it was wonderful for him that he was taken away from us. He helped a lot of people and perhaps was not credited enough for it.....I miss him and think of him often.....Alex friend Joy Samanski (a Leo)

“ My deepest sympathies go out to his family. I hope his family and friends can take comfort in the love, wisdom, courage and powerful spirit he brought to life, sometimes in unorthodox and misunderstood ways
A life that fosters and indeed promotes "self awareness being present" will live on ---> ALWAYS. Greatly missed by Paul and Trudy !

Quite happy to hear that Alexander Blair-Ewart kept 'to thine own self be true' for his entire life. We met at the Theosophical Society back in 1973 bringing his version of Blavatsky with him from London. We should have more unique souls like him around to keep the joint jumping. dTb
