“ Dan and I were childhood best friends I. Him myself and Liam as well as Brock were always playing at dons house, Don used to pay me cause I was always cleaning. That's a funny memory. Then other days we'd be playing video games at his mom Vickie's house a Block over. I also felt very safe with Dan. I was heavily bullied throughout my childhood and teen years but Dan always welcomed me with open arms And not a single judgement was passed on me. Last I saw Dan we were walking in opposite directions, he was going to work. We shared a big hug and exchange of numbers. I believe I lost that old Phone. I still live a block over from dons and I walk my dog past his house every so often.. I want to always knock on the door like old times but I figured Dan was out on his own... I'm devastated to hear such a huge light of life has been blown out. Hell live on in my Memories as long as I can. Love you Dan. Xox

“ We were so sad to hear of Dan's passing—our deepest condolences to all of his family.

I ran into Dan off and on in the neighbourhood, and we'd always stop to chat. Dan was such a warm, personable guy; friendly, and curious. We have lots of fun memories of young Dan, when the boys were in primary and middle school together.

We are deeply sorry for your loss.

“ My beloved Dan,

I don't think your obituary captured the beautiful sensitive person you were. It doesn't speak to your remarkable sense of humour and the many practical jokes we played on each other. It is rare to find a soul more loyal than you. You freely gave to anyone in need whenever you could. I could write a short story about the many times I witnessed this. You didn't always have that same love returned to you. My Dan, you faced so much trauma and loss , so much pain both emotional and physical. At times you faltered but you always strove to pick yourself up. Your smile could warm the coldest heart.

Chris, Fin and I will remember and honour you as long as we are on this planet and I pray we will be together again someday. I love forever, I love you for always. As long as I'm living my baby you'll be Mom
