“ Mom, you would find this amusing to know I have a loss for words. I find words cannot describe someone in your life that meant so much and that someone is you. Yes you were my mother and a good one at that but you were also my friend. I miss our countless hours on the phone talking about everything and anything including relationships, shopping, decorating you name it we talked about it. Growing up you always doted on your children and we knew how much we were loved. When we learned of your disease I had no idea what was going to happen to all of our lives and the impact it would have on the family and especially on you. I'm so sorry that you had to go through such hardships and endure such pain and if I could of taken any of it away from you I would have. You were so strong right until the end and never gave up, you are my hero. I felt along time ago you were lost to this disease. As I sat with you in the end I sang to you and for brief moments I thought you were really listening and when we prayed the same. A nice moment near the end when Dave, Tab and I prayed and held each other's hand with yours, I will cherish always. When you finally passed on August 21, 2022 I was not prepared for what I felt, so alone because I now knew you were not in this world anymore and I felt a little lost. I know time heals all but that feeling I felt and still feel I believe will be there until we meet again. I just miss you so much and I always will. You know What! Always now and forever. Mickkie(the way you liked my name spelled)

I have done what you asked and I hope you find comfort in that. The family will have a celebration of your life the Nanny way Big Hats, Big purses and Big sunglasses and I know you will be there laughing.

“ Elisabeth, I remember the first day I saw you, you were working in a restaurant and I was visiting with my family from Switzerland. Your back was to me and we always made a joke about that because I knew at that moment I wasn't going home and then you turned around and I fell in love with you. You taught me so much. We raised our children to have good morals. You were a wonderful wife, great mother and grandmother and one hell of a classy lady Our life together was to short. My memory is not as good as it used to be but I do know I will never forget how much I loved you and always will. Until we meet again. Peter
