“ just learned of George's passing....we would catch up every so often. I knew George as Rusty, my cousin. Rusty's mom (Mary) was my mom's (Fran's) sister. I idolized Rusty when I was a teenager. Rusty had a "bogie cut", flat top with ducktails. I moved to the US to teach university, and lost touch with most of my relative but Rusty and I found a way to keep in touch. Rusty taught me how to play guitar. I'm 71 and still a bluesman, thanks to Rusty. I miss him greatly and am still in shock...

“ Our most sincere condolences to the family of George Maloney, a very good friend of my family.

George and his wife Leslie have always been present at all our precious events.

They have never hesitated to come down from Toronto to celebrate this special occasion in Shawiniga...

We are with you Leslie, and for you George, we know that you will continue to protect your lovely wife

“ Have a lot of memories of George. He was the best man at my wedding, pretty much taught me to play guitar, was in one of the only bands I was ever in, lost a lot of half-nine wrenches in Barnes' backyard, was an avid and iffy snowmobiler, had a noisy 57 Ford which he insisted was fast, gave me (unwillingly) his Volvo bucket seats for my Dodge hemi, and shared a taste for Carlsberg bock that has never been equalled. Cars, bikes, sleds and repairs in the freezing cold. Many, many stories... but there have been a lot of those in a complicated life.

“ so many years & so many memories. George taught me how to drive in my mom's '59 Chevy belair with the big wings on the back. He always said he couldn't even put his elbow out the window because I was so close to the other cars. The first time I got drunk was at his mom's house, on gin. Can't even smell it to this day. The jam sessions, the drag races, the parties, the kids, the dogs, the dinners, the nicknames and shared friends. We lost touch for a few years but then reconnected. I didn't see him often but he was someone I knew would be there if I needed help and I was always greeted with love. He was not a constant part of my life, but he held a big spot in my heart and always will. We saw & met Doyle Dykes in 2010 and this is his picture with George, along with another picture of George & my dog Chloe

“ Just an online friend from one of his talk Groups here, but Stroker and I became kinda close in a friendship, even tho neither one of us had met each other face to face. I will certainly miss him and his words of wisdom, along with the stories of his "younger years" and his lust for his "ice cream hot sauce" that I sent him from Ralph and Kakoos here in the Big Easy. Ride free and easy now Brother, you've earned it thru this life,,,,, carry on in the next.

“ Rest in Paradise sweet, gentle man. I would like to share one of many wonderful memories of our George. 30 years ago, George and Leslie insisted on driving me home from darts. I was 6 months pregnant and bleeding. Home to hospital, and 3 hours later, I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. Not so sure what the outcome may have been had George and Leslie not been so persistent. Ever since, George and my daughter have always enjoyed a soft spot for each other. Our heart felt condolences to family and friends. He will be sorely missed. Dawn and Gord

“ George was more than just my brother in law, he was also my riding buddy. We spent many hours together on the road, in good weather and bad. I regret that i had lost touch with him during the past couple of years, and i would give anything for one more "Georgetown run". RIP brother.

“ George immediately welcomed me to the family when Mark and I announced our engagement. That has always meant a great deal to me.

“ I met this wonderful man on Oct.14th 1984 and my life forever changed. Thru George I met some of the most amazing people and traveled to places I never expected to get to. Right now I am unable to say how much this man meant to me and I am not sure I ever will. I do know that I will love him til the day I die and can hop on the back of the old Sporty and ride the clouds with him. Ride free sweetheart ... I miss you .. (((hugs forever))) Leslie
