“ My heartfelt condolences to the family of Geri. I had the pleasure of working as a team with Geri at Winston Churchill C.I. for five years. Such a wonderful, intelligent and witty colleague, who kept us organized and able to deal with challenged youth. My heart aches knowing such a wonderful soul has passed. Love to all who knew her.

“ Gerri was loved, But she was fighting a battle much stronger than her self. A monster called mental illness. She was my travel companion through England Wales and Ireland ; where are we had many adventures and misadventures. Gerri loved pigs. I used to say to her “Gerri , don’t throw a piggy”. We had tea at Harrods. Enjoyed the mist on the mountains of Wales. We also saw Tom Jones’ house. We had many an Irish breakfast, but neither of us could choke down the blood pudding. We drank a lot of Guinness with friends and family. We bathed our faces in magic water. We walked, A lot , because everything in London is “five minutes up the road. “ More like an hour. We learned that the tube was on strike when we got to London. So we walked , more. Where did brass rubbings together. Saw many churches but our favourite mutual attraction was the Tower of London. Jerry was thrilled that Coronation street was three weeks ahead there. We hunted fairies. Spent some time in Carrick, walked on ancient cobblestone streets, we ate in a Chinese restaurant where they asked if we would like fries or rice? We marvelled at the beautiful greenery of Ireland. It’s time to take your rest now Gerri , you’ve earned it. I am sure where you are, they have half-and-half for your coffee. (inside joke). Drink the wine and dance with the fairies. Share your secrets , they won’t tell. From your ever loving sister, Christine. ❤️🙄. See you on the other side.

We shared the ups and downs of mental healthcare. Unfortunately, I couldn’t reach her when she went into her really dark spaces. I won’t ever forget you Geri. Sending love your way. Christopher.

Geri was a welcomed part of my family since our high school days at Monarch Park. I have many wonderful memories. Geri was fun-loving, caring, kind, intelligent, mischievous and loved debates. I greatly enjoyed out times together.

Sadly, we lost contact over the last years.

I know Geri is having a pint with her dad.
