“ I am Norma Chamber's niece, who was Shirley's best friend. I have many photos of a young Shirley, that I thought Joe would like to have had. Sadly with his passing, this will not happen. Would any of you like them?

“ Belated condolences from the Mclaughlan family. We just returned from vacation and read your email of Joe's passing. Please accept our deepest, heartfelt sympathies. It was my pleasure to have had a pleasant conversation with Joe and his caregiver at Connie's service. We reminisced about times gone by.

My mother and your grandfather as you know were related. They both had mutual admiration for each other so needless to say it pleased her greatly when after years of trying to locate him in Canada, we finally did manage to make contact. In doing so, both families were united. Sadly, Joe I believe is the last of the Munro clan here in Canada, this would also be the case when it is my turn to exit this world.

My everlasting memories of Joe are of his lovely smile, calm, consideration of others needs and willingness to help others in any way he could. I have always had the greatest respect for Joe, who was a true gentleman in every sense of the word.

To all of you once again, we ask that you please accept our deepest sympathy.

On behalf of the Mclaughlan family

“ Our family was saddened to hear of Joe's passing. It brought back memories of a young Joe, perhaps 13 years old, who volunteered to update subscriptions to the progressive youth publication "Champion". The machine was an old Addressograph and it gave him many problems.

At times we saw Joe and Shirley when the Fydenchuk/Munro Clan came out to visit us at the farm. There would be Scotty and Alice, Connie and Merv, and grandma Fydenchuk who worked on the best borscht soup you ever tasted. Of course there were the Fydenchuk kids and maybe some neighbours from Shier Drive would come along. It usually ended up being a Down East kitchen party with music provided by an assortment of musicians, some very talented and some less so. These gatherings have left us with fond memories.

In recent years Joe he was enjoying teaching seniors how to navigate on the computer. Since I am a senior, he very kindly gave me a much needed lesson.

Your family has had much sadness in the last few years. We hope better days are ahead.

With love to all,

Rosemarie Herrell and Family
