“ Remembering Markus - classmate, good friend and a fine man. Gone too soon from this life; holding faith in his belief that cycles of individual life and death are repeated endlessly as part of the greater living web of interconnection. "Buddhism teaches that the vibrant energy we refer to as 'life' has no beginning and no end. It is continuously undergoing a dynamic process of change. With this awareness and understanding one can live without fear of death, living instead with strength, clarity of purpose and joy. Death, in a positive light, is a period of rejuvenating sleep." Rest well, my friend.
