

Mr. Ronald Calvin Daugherty

May 11, 2015

Born December 26, 1951

Died May 11, 2015

Ron died peacefully after many trials with his illness. He has so many friends and family that cared so deeply about him. A private wake will be held for him at home:

89 Burnside Drive, Toronto on May 23, any time after 2 PM . In lieu of flowers, a donation to the following is requested. Ron cared deeply about the needs of the homeless, and the Scott Mission does great work in this field. Here is the site to contribute in his name: <http://www.scottmission.com/programs/mens-ministry> .

Tribute Wall

MM

“ Ron, you lived, you cared, you brought laughter, smiles and groans with your quick wit, but when our life is over, we do want to be remembered. I do remember and I am happy you were in my life for the time we shared together and for our beautiful son, Lanny. I wish, if wishes can be part of remembering, that you had been able to give more of you, to each of your children. They are your legacy and they are each unique and amazing. We do remember. Thank you Sandra for being there with and for Ron throughout his illness. He always spoke of you with love. Love and light...Melinda

Melinda McNie - May 31, 2015 at 11:31 PM

WM

“ To my best friend for 39 years...a man of remarkable wit and unforgettable personality. You've left me with so many enjoyable memories that will last the rest of my life. Times of weekend trips in your yellow Galaxie XL (when I learned to check my nerves at the car door), parties at the house we shared, vacationing together in the Okanagan (going for "your local ride"), saving my skin (quite literally) as my best man, and so many, many others. Laughs in the basement with Bebe Falcone and several nights on the town when you should have won emmy's for your one-man show. Never a dull moment buddy!
I guess what I'm saying is, although you've left us, and it feels like you've taken a piece of me with you, my life is so, so much richer for you having been here.
A tip of the Bacardi shot glass to you, pal! If it's missing from my cabinet next week, I'll know who has it.

Wayne McNiven - May 26, 2015 at 08:50 PM

AT

“ *Astrid Thomas lit a candle in memory of Mr.
Ronald Calvin Daugherty*

Astrid Thomas - May 21, 2015 at 01:42 PM

BR

“ Ron, my friend...where do I start?

You may not have been large in stature, but you more than made up for this in your larger-than-life personality. As I recently mentioned to Sandra, I think you are one of the most honest people that I have ever met. You certainly never had a problem with saying exactly what was on your mind. I also mentioned there might have been a time or two that a filter may have come in handy...but hey, that is now water under the bridge.

I best remember you for your sense of humour and your follow-up laugh. Again...without filters...it may not be to everyone's taste, but I love it. I also love most of the music that you love...which can only mean that we are both brilliant. I mean truly...what else could it possibly mean?

Fortunately, for me, I never visited you when were in the backyard in full "sun tanning mode", but I am sure all your past neighbours will remember you this way. (Friends and family can ask Sandra if you need more details...but you probably don't need to)

So, before I pressed SHARE on this message, I went to my liquor cabinet to find a suitable substitute for Jameson Irish Whisky, to raise a quick toast to you...as per your instructions. To my great surprise, I actually have a bottle of it, which I am pretty sure I never bought.

Wait a second...did you put it there for this very occasion??? You sneaky bastard!!!

So the last laugh is yours,

CHEERS

Bryan Roby - May 20, 2015 at 05:39 PM