“ Winston "Wis"

When I think of Wis it brings me back to my fondest childhood memories. Memories of him and Nanny and one of my favourite places to this day, their apartment on York Mills.

I look back and smile when I think about all the holidays and family dinners we shared Together, and the card games they would have that Nanny let me stay up for. I remember Playing Nintendo with Wis, oh how he loved that Nintendo and oh how Nanny hated it!

Wis also loved golf. When I was little I used to get his golf clubs out and play with them,

He gave me his putter to practice with or as I called it the "butter". Since Wis was the superintendent he was always running around, in an out doing something, on occasion

Wis would bring me along on his adventures. I remember going down to the incinerator room to see all the big loud machines. I also remember when Wis' daughter Charlene came to visit us from Newfoundland. Sure she was nice and all, but I remember that pang of jealousy I had back then thinking "that's my Wis not yours" I always thought of Wis as

A second grandfather. That is why finding out about his passing so soon after Gumpys makes it that much harder. I didn't see Wis much after Nanny died, so when we reconnected again I was thrilled to see him. It was like a missing part of myself and my childhood was suddenly put back into place. I had the chance to visit Wis while I was Pregnant and after I had Anthony. I am so happy and thankful that he got the chance to meet my son. Whenever we would visit, Wis always seemed so happy to see us. And he was eager to chat and show us his gadgets like his camera, digital photo frame and the fact that he was computer savvy. One of the last memories I have of Wis is from his wedding day. I had went up to him to give him a kiss and hug and congratulate him, and he opened his arms up to me and said very proudly "that's my girl". I am very thankful and proud to Have had Wis in my life and family. I love you Wis, you will never be forgotten.

Love always Amanda Deborah Hussey
